CAUTION - EXTERNAL:

Hi Lisa and Haley,

I hope you are doing well. We must admit to some confusion related to the court's order this morning. So we just want to make sure we understand it. There are two questions:

- 1) Is the government's motion for default allowed? Or is the defendant's motion to vacate the default allowed?
- 2) If the former, does the deadline mean that the government, as plaintiff in this case, has until March 24th to file its Motion for Default Judgment, which was the deadline we were operating under. Or does the defendant have until March 24th to file an answer or responsive pleading to our complaint? Our apologies but the order reads that the March 24th deadline is for the Plaintiff's answer or responsive pleading.

Forgive our question but we just want to be absolutely sure we understand the Court's order. Particularly since we are dealing with a pro se defendant.

Thank you so much for the clarification.

Steve
